

A 3D rendering of a particle detector track. The track is a diagonal sequence of particles and interaction points. It starts with two yellow cylinders (interaction points) on the left, followed by a series of white circles (particles) and black circles (particles) that vary in size and opacity. The track ends with a series of white circles on the right. The background is white.

